Took It Seriously.

The late Professor Hinsdale was singularly devoid of all sense of humor. and as for slang-well, he knew far more about the deadest of dead languages than he did concerning these saucy innovations on his native tongue.

There was a certain piece of legislation which was of considerable interest to the local school officials. It had been introduced into the legislature and was there hanging fire.

One day Professor Hinsdale, then school superintendent, sald to Mr. Tom Whitehead, secretary of the board of education: "Mr. Secretary, what is the outlook for that special school bill now in the hands of the state legislators? Do you believe it will be adopted

The secretary shook his head in a manner that was meant to be thoroughly discouraging and said, with a strong

"It will be a cold day when that bill

The superintendent nodded and pass-

A day or two later somebody came into his office and asked him about the prospects of the same bill.

"Well," ise replied in his heavy way, "I have no personal means of knowing the status of the measure, but I have been assured emphatically by Secretary Whitehead, who may be considered an expect in securing knowledge of this character, that the bill will not pass until next winter." - Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Public Gallows a Century Ago. | Pinebluff Grape & Pecan Company, Even if the bicycle had been invented a hundred years ago touring could hardly have become very popular-at all events, for solitary cyclists. The eld guidebooks were by no means *heerful resuling. A run from London to East Grie-dead, a distance of five or six and tweaty miles, would have taken the wheelman past three gibbets, and it was just as likely as not that from one or the other of them a body

To vill the beginning of the nineteenth century the gallows was almost as frequent a landmark as finger posts or public houses have become now. The traveler approaching York is directed by the guidebooks to "turn | round by the gallows and three windmills," and the read out of Durham is "hetween the gallows and Crokehill." Going out of Wells you "cross the brook and pass by the gallows."

Any number of such directions can ocala, be glossed from the old books for the guidance of travelers a hundred years ago, and as these interesting objects were put up and the dead bodies of mulcfactors left upon them for the special edification of footpads and highwaymen there was a suggestiveof them that must have given m special permanay to eyele tenring if it had i.e. a in cogue at that thue.-Lou-

Every Family in the South Should Plan Reliable

The Pecan tree not only bears one of the most delicous nuts, but is one of the most hardy trees that grows in the South, and makes as fine a shade as the elm and maple and no family should be without a few trees. It would pay the town authorities to do as the French authorities do, plant nut-bearing trees on the sidewalks and get a revenue therefrom. A town that would this year put out a thousand trees on the sidewalks at comparatively small cost would, in ten years, get an annual return of at least $500.00 and each year there would be an increase until the income would reach from three to five thousand dollars annually. Enough to more than pay all taxes of an ordinary size town.

The trees do well planted in cotton and corn fields, and farmers can cultivate the lands in crops of corn and TAMPA - - - - FLORIDA. cotton until the trees get to bearing, and after they commence bearing a a small fortune in his pecan and don't need to plant cotton and corn. It is hardy and stands the cold weather anywhere south of Maryland. At Pinebluff, North Carolina, there is a company that makes a specialty of growing the young trees for sale, and we advise the town authorities and all readers of our papers, to write the Pinebluff, N. C., for circulars.
